What is the game about?: Odd One Out is a relatively short (about 20 min) ice breaker game with easy rules and fast gameplay.

Number of players:4

How to start: Get on discord or zoom (audio +shared text chat). Figure out who out of the group of 4 is the oldest. This person becomes the first 'picker'

How to play:

As a 'picker': pick two related objects, (speak out loud) the rest of the group your two objects. Give the rest of the players a chance to type out their decision(about 3 seconds or less). Then count down from 3.

As a 'player': pick one of the two options given by the picker and type it out, send your choice in the chat at the end of the picker's countdown. If you were the odd one out you win that round, are awarded a point and become the next picker. Have a piece of paper near you to keep tallies of your score.

The gameplay repeats until someone has 7 points at which point 'hot potato round' is activated and the two words chosen must be related to potatoes. It has the same gameplay as any other round but winning this round will award the player 4 points. Whoever has the most points at the end of 'hot potato round' wins. In the instance of a tie at the end of the game a "holy hot potato" round will occur in which winning the round will give the player 13 points and end the game. In a 'holy hot potato' round both of the players that are tied can't be the picker, the pick will be the oldest member of the group and if that person is one of the two tied the picker role will be passed down till there is an eligible player.

Rules:

1. This is a fast game therefore spelling is not important, the picker shouldn't pick words that are spelled similarly
2. The time given to pick and write out a word should not exceed 5 seconds, whoever is the current picker will keep track of time.
3. Hot potato round must involve potato related words
4. Each player is expected to keep track of their own points, keeping a sticky note with tally marks might be a helpful way of keeping track.
5. Players can't lie about how many points they have
6. If all three people say the same thing no one gets a point, and whoever was the last picker picks again.
7. For an added level of difficulty try only using words from a specific pool ex; vocab words, or foods, or movies!
8. The picker can not immediately go into the countdown; there must be a grace period (3 seconds), this grace period is not a harsh time restraint as it will be different depending on how long it takes for people to type the words that were chosen.
